TEMPLE OF JUSTICE CLOSER. We approunce at the time that Joseph C. Baird, Esq., had vacated the office of 'Squire, and that he had been elected a supernumerary night watchman in a down-town district. Mr. Baird was suc ceeded by our legal friend Gailbreath, whose career has been somewhat brief, if not glori cos, he having resigned, a day or two since, to resume the practice of his profession. The Temple so long sacred to justice, in Jefferson street, near Jackson, is now vacant, and is supposed to be "to let." The library and fixtures, hallowed by official use, and somewhat tainted by the smell of tobacco, were placed under the profaning hammer of the auctioneci yesterday, and, we presume, went off at a premium, on account of the association. We are not authorized by 'Squire Connell to make the announcement, but presume he will feel grate ful to us for the suggestion, that he does not feel bound to entertain the entire weight of legal genius which has heretofore divided its tine between the two offices, the full force of which will now very naturally be thrown upon him, or their own resources. We merely make the intimation that the city had as well erect a large edifice for the exclusive use of suburba: lawyers; or, perhaps, the occupancy of the engine-houses could be shared between then. and the Know-Nothing Councils for a time Any reasonable arrangement of the kind will suit us, it it will satisfy the parties more imme the advertisement of Mr. Samuel Gill, Superindiately concerned. Here, at the sharply-contested elec-tion yesterday, there was no fighting or disorder; everything was quiet around the polls, and the spectacle was one of which our citizens may feel proud, it being an impressive exhibi tion of the ascendency of law and order, and the protection which it affords to the most feeble and lowly. In Louisville, peace and quiet can only be secured by the forced abdication of me political party from the field, and its sub mission, without opposition, to the ascendency of the other.
